Joe... We haven't seen each other in years, and I hate that I missed your service and the people that we spent our youth with and laughed with and got in so much trouble with!! You were always sweet to me and a fun guy to be around. I'm sorry that you went so young. I know you will be missed. Wish I could of seen you one more time and got one more hug. May you be at peace..

"Lil Joe" as I have always known him, was the very last person to be with my son Justin before he passed away. Now they are together again, in heaven. My heart is heavy for his Mom, Peggy, as I know better than most what she is going through, and for his sister, Bridgette, as my daughter Jackie knows better than most what she is going through; and for all the rest of his family and his friends, many, many, who were also Justin's friends. . I am so sorry for the loss of this young life. Rest in Peace Joe, and I hold your family in my thoughts and prayers and ask that the Lord bring them some comfort in their loss. Joanne Mason Altizer

Joe was such a smart guy. He had big dreams and wanted so badly to be successful and happy in life. Sometimes relationships do not work out but he and I cared for one another as much as we could. I don't think there are really words to describe how heart breaking it is to know he's no longer here. The last conversation we held he was telling me about going back to school and asked to see the kids. I explained to him that I didn't want to confuse them. I wish I would have let him at least meet my son and to see how big Ema has gotten. My heart breaks for his family right now, especially his mama. If any of you are reading please know that for the time period that Joe and I were together, be made it very clear that he loved his mother and his sister more than anyone else in the world. He may not have said it as much as he could but he did. And for all his mother has ever done for him, Joe was grateful. He was always grateful. We don't always show people how much we appreciate them but Joe was always open with me about how grateful he was. I'm so sorry for this loss. My heart is so heavy for all of us.
