I must say that every encounter with Scot was an adventure. We talked about life, the world and the universe. Scot had an expansive mind and loved to chat about many different things. We shared cooking tips and then we would jump to multiple issues in the world. He was analytical and I was more ethereal. He was idealist and I was more practical.. Scot was super organizational and I was more laid back. Plans that had to be made drove him crazy as every little thing had to be scrutinized. . Of course we always shared our thoughts and feelings but at the end of every conversation Scot would always brag on his boys and shared how very proud he was of them. Not the least he also would tell me what an incredible woman, mom and friend his Marissa was. So many wonderful memories. But what always melted my heart was that soft loving voice at the end of each conversation saying "love you mamma Donna". Rest In Peace Scot! Death is not the final sleep; it is the first real awakening!! —Fly with the Angels and enjoy the journey. —

Scot was an American Mock Trial Association All-American for UW-Milwaukee prevailing at the March of 2000 National Tournament at Hamline University in Saint Paul. Our squad, that year, appeared in the National Championship Final Trial against the University of Maryland where we lost two ballots to one with the decisive ballot being a one-pointer. As remains true of my UWM squads, I take "all-comers" and Scot was one of our older adult students (though not close to the eldest ever) and, like most, his was a case of building confidence, realizing true potential and pursuing it to the hilt. We "work hard, play hard" and Scot was in his element in both. He remains one of my favorite alums. I was sorry to learn of his loss and encourage his sons to emulate a truly fine guy.
