She loved to play cards with her Bridge Club and valued their friendships very much. You would often find her gathered around her kitchen table with friends. Her annual beach trips with her children and grandchildren were something she looked forward to every year.

One of her special joys was spending time with her grandchildren. For many years she drove them back and forth across the bridge to school. They shared special times together in the car that her grandchildren will never forget-Her love for Elvis music, Target runs, and a daily McDonald's drive thru.
