Growing up in Memphis, he was raised to be a proud Greek American. He attended Christian Brothers and served in the Air Force. He maintained a tireless work ethic and zeal for serving the Memphis community. His career included working at Memphis' iconic restaurant Jim's Place, opening Kosta's Pet Shop, and working as a Care Partner at Baptist Hospital.

He enjoyed painting and ceramics with works distributed throughout the local Greek community and beyond. At Trezevant Manor, he was an active resident and enjoyed several activities including exercise class, movies, arts and crafts, having meaningful conversations with friends, and the occasional poker game.

I treasure the ceramic praying hands Kosta gave me. They have a permanent place on my bookcase where I see them often and remember him kindly.
