I loved talking with June about her dad and mine and the love between those two brothers. After Uncle Pete died, my dad would often take me with him when he visited June and Phillip. They would come to see us whenever they went to the cemetery to visit Grandma Evie's grave. June was always a very loving person. I think our dads instilled in both of us a strong sense of family. My heart is with you, dear cousins, as you honor her life. Donna Simmons Hickman
