“ Paul and I were together for 20 years. I miss him so much and the only comfort comes from knowing he is no longer suffering but is with our Lord and those he loved who went before. He loved to use quotes and in the last card he gave me the quote from Ayn Rand was “The question isn’t who is going to let me; it’s who is going to stop me.” Little did I know then how much those words and personal note written below would mean to me now. I thank God and Paul, my beloved husband, often for those 20 years together.
